

Atlas of Southeastern USA Gold Mines & Mineralization

Lindsey V. Maness, Jr.
Exploration Geologist
12875 West 15th Drive
Golden, CO 80401-3501
Tel: 303-237-6590

E-Mail: lvmaness@2001AD.COM
china-resources.net

f-AUM9JN09.DOC, d-ADNCSGGA

---Copyrighted & Published by Lindsey V. Maness, Jr.©, 1998, all rights reserved---

$50 US

Edition Version: June 9th, 1999

Dedication:

This publication is dedicated to the staff of the USGS Library at the Denver Federal Center, without whom the information herein would have been far less comprehensive. Due to their long-term efforts, the USGS Library is, in every sense, a modern-day analogue of the "Alexandria Library" of antiquity, but dedicated to the preservation of knowledge about the resources of the world. Every time I go into the USGS Library and find some long-forgotten treasure of knowledge, I feel both awed and privileged that such a facility exists and that I, a citizen, have unrestricted access to all the accumulated knowledge that is openly preserved and protected there. It is my strong opinion that the knowledge preserved and made available by the USGS Library has, without recognition, greatly improved America's standard of living this century. The USGS Librarians exemplify, without exception, all that is best in civil servants: professionalism, courtesy, helpfulness, integrity, impartiality and knowledge, openly available to all. My heartfelt thanks to you all! It is hoped that this factual document about our early gold mines will assist in recognizing the 1999 bicentennial of the first discovery of gold in the United States of America.